They could also discuss the moral of the story. • Pupils could draw a collage to depict the tale or they could make a model of the landscape, the billy goats and the troll, which could then be used as they re-tell the tale. They could also write paragraphs to describe their models, e.g. Dyma ... This is ... (name of the troll) Mae e'n / o'n byw ... (He lives ...) Mae pen ... yn fawr. ((Troll's name)'s head is big.) Mae trwyn ... yn hir iawn. ((Troll's name)'s nose is very long) Mae ceg ... yn enfawr – grét, achos mae e'n / o'n hoffi bwytia ... ((Troll's name)'s mouth is huge – great, because he likes to eat...)

They could also discuss the photographs in this book: Beth wyt ti'n gallu gweld yn y llun? (What can you see in the photo?) » Dw i'n gallu gweld ... (I can see ...) • They could make similar books about themselves, celebrities or their heroes. They could begin by writing a short profile, as seen in this book, and then write more fully about the people featured. • Pupils could also create a book about some of the places they have visited and include relevant images. They could make posters / leaflets to describe these places.
